THE URGENCY OF THE TASK

At a memorial service to Ernest DeWitt Burton, late President of the University of Chicago, Dr. C. W. Gilkey said:

"In the last talk I ever had with him, shortly before his second operation . . . he pointed to some notes lying on the table before him and said, 'In the last two weeks I have seen more clearly than ever before in thirty years what this University ought to be and may become. . . . In that future and for its realization, the moral and religious life of the University is more central and important than I have ever before realized it to be.' That is the last thing he ever said to me, and I share it with you as a message which this University must never forget."

President Livingston Farrand of Cornell has recently written:

"Learning alone is not the object of a university education. More recently has come a deep sense of responsibility on the part of our universities that character and right ideals must also be added to a man's equipment if he is to be regarded as educated in the true sense of the word. . . . And if we face our Cornell situation we must recognize that there is a problem of morale, a problem of ideals which is far more difficult of solution than that of providing technical information. Unless our men go out not only with technical information but with acquired habits of true character and manhood, our training has missed its goal."

President James R. Angell of Yale in his annual report issued in September, 1924, writes:

"Our universities throughout the country are giving deep thought to the question of affording to the student body the opportunity for religious teaching and the development of religious thought. . . . One finds in college the same changes of thought as in the larger communities. These changes are particularly obvious in the attitude toward the old religious forms. I have a deep faith in the spiritual quality of our youth, which is properly seeking its own particular expression, but which is in many of its essentials the quality of Christianity. There is an undoubted confusion in the minds of many students regarding the relation of the spiritual and moral side of their lives to religion, just as is the case with their elders. The dissipation of this confusion may require a new approach in religious teaching and the universities may well be called upon to take the lead. . . . Whatever steps may be taken along this line, it remains true that the spiritual atmosphere of an institution depends in large part on the direct influence of the members of the faculty in their teaching, in their personal lives, in their relation to individual students."

These statements voice the mature convictions of three of the leading presidents of American Universities. They state the urgency of a fresh approach to religious and moral conditions in our colleges and universities.

Many of our institutions of higher learning were founded for the express purpose of fostering the religious ideals of students to the end that reverence, righteousness and scholarship might go hand in hand. As long as this purpose was in control and simple conditions continued, character education was provided for. In recent years, however, administrators have been over-burdened with problems of organization, material equipment and finance. Many faculty members have been forced into technical specialization to the neglect of vital personal relationships with their students. These relationships have in many instances been abbreviated and made highly impersonal. Students themselves have been caught in a whirl of extra-curricular activities. Thus the deeper issues of life have often been crowded to one side or utterly ignored. The problem is intensified by the modern search for pleasure as an end in itself, by the youthful assertion of experimental freedom, and by the presentation in many college courses of the new world of science as if it were in conflict with religion. Uncertainty and confusion characterize the present situation.

Problems of morale have become peculiarly acute in some of the larger state universities in which there has been an unprecedented increase in enrollment and much uncertainty as to what might or might not legally be done to foster the moral and religious life of their students. The failure of the religious forces in many instances to serve the universities with unity and high effectiveness has further aggravated the situation.

Thoughtful presidents, faculty members and students alike are deeply concerned at the dangerous tendencies in the present situation. There is a new awakening to the need for an adequate guidance of college youth. We are gradually opening our eyes to the desire of college men and women for religious instruction which recognizes all the facts of life and gives them an understanding of their own religion as well as that of others. Educators are recognizing the eagerness of students for a satisfactory explanation of that upward urge in the life of the universe which science reveals. They see that youth needs a philosophy of life which will carry it through the complexities and temptations confronting it on all sides. Great numbers of parents and alumni share in the desire to incorporate afresh the fundamental principles of religion and morals in the lives of students. It is among thoughtful students themselves, however, that this desire is most intense. All recognize more clearly than ever before the importance of these principles in the true development of American life as a whole. In spite of the distinct advances made in recent years by the Christian churches and other religious bodies, by the Christian Associations and similar student groups, it is increasingly recognized that the institutions themselves must grapple afresh with this critical problem.

If religion be thought of as one of the chief motivating forces in human life then its function, however variously conceived, is central and enduring. It is evident that no machinery of organization, no system of stated services, or formal instruction can take the place of vital teaching and personal relationships. "The high results in character education which we all desire do not come apart from persons; the right persons are absolutely essential", says a leading president. That is the central necessity as seen by the National Council on Religion in Higher Education: a decided increase in the number of men and women of highest ability and spiritual insight as teachers, counsellors and administrators. The Council focuses upon this increase as its chief effort. "I heartily approve of this constructive effort" says another university president.

This Council, though recently organized, has already made possible the graduate training of fifty-one men and women of high ability, attractive personality and religious spirit. Approximately one-third of these are already at work in responsible positions in American colleges and universities.

THE STATED PURPOSES OF THE COUNCIL

The Council puts its emphasis not upon brick and mortar, nor upon any new form of religious organization. It seeks rather to discover, train and place men and women of exceptional ability and religious spirit who shall teach, counsel, and guide undergraduate students in their life development. It discovers these persons, chiefly recent graduates, by means of a nation-wide search; it gives them full freedom in working out their personal contribution to the problem; it aids them in their further training for service as members of faculties, administrators, university pastors, student counselors, and directors of religious activities.

To this end

1. "The Council maintains national fellowships to aid in securing and thoroughly training able graduates of American colleges and universities to teach religion or to render similar service in institutions of higher learning."

In order that this service be widely effective

2. "The Council seeks to cooperate with faculties of colleges, universities, and seminaries in developing their religious courses or departments of religion, and, when requested, to assist in establishing schools of religion without sectarian bias and representative of the combined religious forces inside and outside the colleges and universities."

The inquiry into undergraduate morale in twenty-four colleges and universities conducted by the Institute of Social and Religious Research, and shared in by members of the Staff of the National Council has revealed the desire for similar investigations on the part of other institutions. The Council has been requested by a number of administrative officers to make such surveys of actual conditions in their respective student bodies.

Therefore

3. "The Council seeks to assist in or to undertake surveys of moral and religious conditions in institutions of higher learning, and to collect data regarding their religious needs and resources."

The conditions prevailing in our student population reflect and emphasize the moral and religious confusion existing in our American life as a whole.

Because of this

4. "The Council seeks to awaken in the American public an appreciation of the importance of religion in the life of individual students, and to promote the fundamental principles underlying religion."

THE FOUNDING AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE COUNCIL

The Council owes its foundation to the far-seeing vision of Professor Charles Foster Kent, Woolsey Professor of Biblical Literature at Yale from 1901 to 1925. In the winter of 1921-22, he visited a number of colleges and universities, and in connection with the delivery of lectures made preliminary surveys of conditions relative to the moral and religious life of students. He enlisted the interest and cooperation of many prominent educators and laymen and led in the movement for the incorporation of the Council with the purposes already stated. A Board of Directors and a body of Councillors, elsewhere listed in this book were chosen to put these purposes into effect.

The enthusiasm and unflagging zeal of Professor Kent took him repeatedly to the institutions and cities of the Southern, Eastern and mid-Western portions of the United States. He established valuable connections with men and women of influence in the field of higher education who caught his vision, rejoiced in his friendship, and continue to give of their time and substance to the cause which he espoused. In spite of his untimely death in May, 1925, the officers and Fellows of the Council have set themselves to a vigorous continuance and development of the program which he outlined. They place their dependence upon the true spirit of science and the true spirit of religion which they believe to be in closest harmony and both alike necessary to the full development of the educational process. They rely upon this happy union to lead to the full discovery of essential truth and the power of truth to verify itself in human life.

In recognition of the important services already being rendered by other agencies and desiring by every means to avoid duplication of effort, the Council limits its work to the four objectives already stated. It establishes no new local organization within colleges and universities but works wholly through administrative officers and established agencies. It sets up no creedal tests, but includes in its personnel men of different religious groups who work together with sympathetic understanding and mutual appreciation. Upon this broad program the Council seeks to enlist the support of all men of goodwill who desire to see the essential spirit of religion permeate the world of higher education.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

This Council relies upon the effectiveness of continuous personal service rather than upon programs or panaceas. Although young in years, it has already achieved certain definite results.

1. It has established the National Fellowships in Religion and has appointed fifty-one such Fellows, a number of whom already occupy positions of responsibility in institutions of higher learning. The others are pursuing their graduate studies, chiefly at Columbia-Union, Yale, Harvard, and the University of Chicago.

2. It has upon invitation aided in the adjustment of courses at these graduate centers, with a view to the more effective training of the Fellows of the Council for the work which lies before them.

3. It has conducted the first and second annual conferences of the Fellows of the Council and thus brought to bear the united thought and planning of those who in the future will be chiefly responsible for carrying on its work.

4. The officers of the Council have upon invitation of presidents and deans counselled in the development of undergraduate courses, departments, and schools of religion in several colleges and universities.

5. The officers of the Council have, in addition to undertaking independent preliminary surveys of moral and religious conditions, shared in the inquiry into undergraduate morale conducted by the Institute of Social and Religious Research.

6. The Council has entered into harmonious relationships with other agencies at work upon various phases of the common task and is participating in plans for still further co-operation.

7. The Council has published a bulletin describing "The undergraduate courses in religion at tax supported colleges and universities", and has ready for the press a similar bulletin upon courses at private and endowed institutions. It has published a bulletin setting forth "The state constitutional, legislative, and supreme court provisions relating to religious influence in tax supported institutions." It has also done preliminary work upon a bulletin of selected bibliographies of religious literature.

8. It has established commissions upon the creation of courses of study preparatory to religious leadership and upon the study of the great living religions.

9. It has enlisted the interest and cooperation of leading citizens in a number of the more important cities of the nation and has inaugurated the plan of state, city, or individual support for its Fellowships.

10. It has helped to stimulate public interest in the function of religion in relation to higher education.

The Board of Directors announces the election of:

DR. CORNELIUS WOELFKIN, Pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church of New York City as Acting Dean

PRESIDENT LIVINGSTON FARRAND of Cornell University as a member of the Board of Directors

MR. ROSS MCFARLAND of Harvard University as Field Secretary.

CHARLES FOSTER KENT

CHARLES FOSTER KENT, Ph.D.

Woolsey Professor of Biblical Literature at Yale University 1901-25.

Author of many books upon the Bible and related subjects.

Founder of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education.

Resolution of the Corporation of Yale University:

"Voted, to record the sorrow of the President and Fellows at the death of Charles Foster Kent, B. A. 1889, Ph. D. 1891, Woolsey Professor of Biblical Literature since 1901, whose stimulating work as a teacher and distinguished activity as a scholar during his long service in education brought honor to his Alma Mater."

Resolution of the Board of Directors of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education

"Having learned with great sorrow of the death of Charles Foster Kent, we wish to record our admiration for his personality and our great debt to his leadership.

His earnestness and imagination early compelled our interest and his gentle yet eager spirit made him a most agreeable colleague whom we shall miss with a sense of deep personal loss.

His many years of academic contact in various parts of the country brought him an informed comprehension of the need of and widespread desire for more adequate teaching of religion in our institutions of higher learning. He grasped upon that idea with the vision of a prophet and the energy of one veritably armed of God and devoted the last too brief years of his life to the upbuilding of an organization to sponsor and prosecute this vision.

The field of religious literature is greatly enriched by his many contributions to it, but to the university world as a whole has been added in his conception of the National Council on Religion in Higher Education a potent force of widest possible significance. This great final effort of his may indeed prove a lasting monument to an able, lovable man who well served his generation."

“You are undertaking a work in which it requires two wholes to make a whole. You must find men and women who are the peers of their faculty colleagues in scholarship and ability, and who are also capable of quickening and guiding the religious life of students.”

ERNEST DEWITT BURTON

Late President of the University of Chicago

THE NATIONAL FELLOWS

HENRY ELISHA ALLEN of Illinois, Yale College, A. B. 1924.

Activities: Editor in Chief, The Yale Daily News. Member of the Student Council. Leader in Student Christian Association. Member Psi Upsilon Fraternity, Elizabethan Club, Skull and Bones Society.

Graduate Study: Will enter Harvard Graduate School, 1926-27.

Occupation: Master in English, The Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., 1924-26.

Field of Interest: History and Philosophy of Religion.

"Henry Allen is a man's man--forceful, intelligent, high-minded and unassuming. Recognized as one of the ablest men of his class at Yale, he achieved a most influential position in undergraduate affairs as Editor in Chief of the Yale Daily News. His religious convictions are deep and broad; his judgments are well balanced; and his teaching experience gives promise of exceptional personal influence with students."

EDWIN EWART AUBREY of Ohio. Bucknell University, Ph. B.

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature and Social Ethics.

"He graduated at the head of an exceptionally strong class, making Phi Beta Kappa as a Junior. He was an outstanding man on the campus during his four years of residence. He is an effective organizer and a wise leader. His mind combines in a rather large degree the powers of penetration and comprehensiveness. His record gives promise of exceptional usefulness in the field of Religious Education.

FRANCIS FOSTER BRADSHAW of North Carolina. University of North Carolina, B.A. 1917.

Activities: Intercollegiate Debate. Business Manager, College paper. Active in social life and Student Christian Association. Phi Beta Kappa. Cosmopolitan Club. Tau Kappa Alpha. Golden Fleece.

Graduate Study: University of North Carolina 1918-22. Summer, Columbia University 1925.

Occupations: Christian Association Secretary, University of North Carolina 1916-18. Lieutenant, Field Artillery 1918-20. Dean of Students, University of North Carolina, 1920-25. Will continue in this capacity in 1925-26.

Field of Interest: University Administration. Psychology and Philosophy.

"He has demonstrated his ability to lead and to exert a wholesome influence not only as an undergraduate but also as a Dean of Men. In this capacity he deals sympathetically and effectively with the intimate problems of great numbers of students. Mentally he is alert, keen and constructive. I have been impressed many times with his ability to analyse his problems and with the stimulating character of his thinking about them."

MILLAR BURROWS of New York. Cornell University, A. B. 1912.

Activities: Music. Dramatics. Discussion Groups. Student Christian Association.

Graduate Study: B. D. Magna cum laude, Union Theological Seminary, 1915.
Ph. D. Yale University, 1925.

Occupations: Interchurch World Movement Survey Supervisor for Texas.
College Pastor and Professor of Biblical Literature, Tusculum College, 1920-23. Conducted course in advanced Hebrew at Yale. Professor of Biblical Literature and History of Religion at Brown University, 1925-26.

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature and History of Religion.

"Millar Burrows is a lover of beauty, truth and goodness. He does not wear his heart on his sleeve but one discovers in him the perceptions of an artist, the insights of a scholar, the strength of an unselfish dedicated man. He focuses on the larger issues with unusual powers of concentration and always with constructive result. "Magna cum laude" in his class at Union Seminary, he is as well a man of deeply human quality, sound in practical judgment, wise in counsel."

LEVY LEONIDAS CARPENTER of South Carolina. Wake Forest College B. A. 1913.

Activities: Editor, College Magazine. Commencement Orator. Active in College Christian Association.

Graduate Study: Th. M. and Th. D. Summa cum laude Louisville Theological Seminary 1913-18.

Occupation: Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Cleveland, Ohio, summers 1920-25.

Field of Interest: Philosophy, Psychology and History of Religion.

"Mr. Chopard, has had wide experience in work with young men. He is a rugged personality, tenacious in purpose and profound in convictions. Through his discussion groups he has drawn to him a considerable number of young men and aroused them to constructive thinking along social and religious lines. He has the ability to inspire young men and guide them in the solution of their personal problems."

HEDLEY SELDON DIMOCK of Canada. University of Saskatchewan, A. B. 1920.

Activities: University Debate and Oratory. University Football. Basketball and Track Teams. President of Senior Class.

Graduate Study: University of Chicago, 1922-26. A. M., 1925.

Occupations: Y. M. C. A. Secretary, 1913-16. Secretary, Saskatchewan Boy's Work Board, 1920-22.

Field of Interest: Religious Education, Psychology, and History of Religion.

"He has always been stable, trustworthy and capable of keeping to the course even in the most severe testing. In the war he served with the famous "Princess Pat" regiment and is now carrying on in the war to end war. In Canada, at his Saskatchewan Alma Mater, he made an enviable record as athlete, student leader and student. He possesses unusual intellectual ability and those qualities of heart which make for sympathetic understanding."

HELEN EDNA DAVIS of New York. Smith College, A. B. 1919.

Activities: Three years in Rhodan School, South Africa. Six years in school in Berlin, Germany. One year in Boston, Mass.

Graduate Study: Columbia and Union Seminary 1923-26.

Field of Interest: Philosophy of Religion. Social and Biographic Ethics.

"She is a woman of rare intellectual gifts, with unusual keenness of insight, capacity for analysis, grasp and poise. Her wide experience abroad, her knowledge of literature and the arts, and her charm in conversation give promise of a productive teaching career."

Theological Seminary 1924-26. University of London 1925-26.

Occupation: Assistant pastor and pastor 1921-25.

Field of Interest: Ethics, Philosophy and Psychology of Religion.

"His work in the Seminary was brilliant. He has a mind of great fertility, systematic, and thorough, a winning personality of the finest Christian quality. In spite of unusual modesty he is a keen conversationalist, knows the problems of our day, believes that Christianity as modernly understood offers the best solution, and has a gift for popular statement of his thought. His success as a scholar and teacher is assured."

JOHN RUSKIN DYER of Ohio. Ohio State University, A. B. 1917.

Activities: President, Student Christian Association. Phi Beta Kappa. Student Council. Debating. Dramatics. Baseball.

Graduate Study: Oxford University, England, Summer 1919. University of Kansas, 1922-25. M. A., 1925.

Occupations: High school teacher and principal. Army Y. M. C. A., 1917. U. S. Army 1918-19. Industrial Secretary Y. M. C. A., 1919-21. Dean of Men, University of Kansas, 1921-25. Will enter graduate school, Columbia University, 1926-27.

Field of Interest: College Administration, Psychology, Social Ethics, and Vocational Guidance.

"Dyer combines in an effective way the virility needed in religious workers, the intellectual strength required for scholarly achievement, and a rich experience in educational and social work. He is straight-forward, honest, and conscientious; he is a delightful personality, optimistic, frank and sympathetic. He has the scientific approach toward the social and religious problems of our time. As the first Dean of Men at the University of Kansas, he has made a place for himself with students and faculty alike by his insight, impartiality, and courageous handling of student problems."

MARK LELAND ENTORF of Montana. Grinnell College, A. B. 1924.

Activities: Active in Student Christian Association. Student Council. Senior Judge of Student Court. Phi Beta Kappa.

Graduate Study: Columbia and Union, 1924-25.

Occupation: Secretary, Christian Association and Presbyterian University Pastor, Cornell University 1925-26.

Field of Interest: Social Ethics.

"Entorf held the full confidence of both the faculty and student body at Grinnell and was generally regarded as the outstanding man in qualities of leadership in the class of 1924. The Student Court under his direction was unusually successful in handling all cases of student discipline. He has real ability as a future scholar and a personality that will make religion live. Modest, discriminating, and dependable, he is a man of reserve power and of extraordinary common sense."

VIRGINIA ELIZABETH FRANKE of Pennsylvania. Vassar College, A. B. 1922.

Activities: College Glee Club. College Editorial Work. Student Christian Association.

Graduate Study: Columbia University, 1922-23. M. A. 1923. Graduate Study Union Seminary and Columbia, 1924-25.

Occupations: Research Worker, Institute of Social and Religious Research. Member of College Study Staff investigating twenty-four colleges and universities, 1923-24. Acting Dean of Women, University of Kentucky, 1925-26.

Field of Interest: College Administration and Education.

"Miss Franke is a thorough and intelligent student, approaching her work with vision, thoughtfulness and energy. She has an engaging personality, intellectual honesty, and executive ability. Students respond to her genuine friendliness and admire her quiet dignity and poise."

JOHN BAKER HANNA of New York. Wesleyan University, B. A. 1912.

Activities: President of Student Body. Varsity Track Team. President, Christian Association. Delta Tau Delta and Honorary Member Alpha Tau Gamma.

Graduate Study: Marburg University, Germany, Summer 1912. Graduate of Union Theological Seminary, 1921. M. A. Amherst College, 1925.

Occupations: Director of Religious Education, 1917-21. Pastor 1921-22. Inter-Church College Pastor, Massachusetts Agricultural College 1922-26. Will study Columbia Graduate School 1926-27.

Field of Interest: Religious Education.

"An upstanding, big-hearted man of high grade ability. He is an earnest student and his effectiveness in first-hand contacts with undergraduates is distinctive. He has rendered unique service as an interchurch pastor and has proven himself a speaker and organizer of unusual gifts."

CYRIL BEVERLY HARRIS of Nova Scotia. Harvard College, A. B. Magna cum laude 1913.

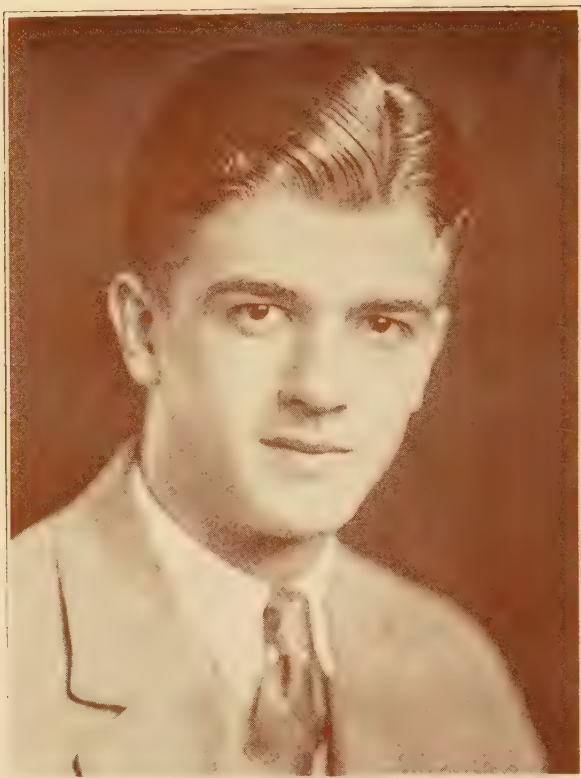

Activities: Editor in Chief of the Harvard Monthly Literary Magazine. Phillips Brooks House Cabinet. Hasty Pudding Club. Student Council. President Harvard Mission.

Graduate Study: B. D. General Theological Seminary, N. Y. C., 1916. Harvard, 1924-26.

Occupations: Episcopal University Pastor, University of Michigan, 1916-18. Chaplain, U. S. Army, 1918-19. Episcopal University Pastor, and Instructor in English at Cornell University, 1919-24. Rector, Trinity Episcopal Church, Tiverton, R. I., 1924-25.

Field of Interest: History and Philosophy of Religion.

"A man of exceptional insight and distinctive literary gifts. He has a deep understanding of the issues of human life. Original in his approach, freed from conventional methods and standards, his writing and teaching are done with lucidity and beauty of statement. No recent book depicts the religious thinking of American students with keener penetration than his Religion of Undergraduates."

ERNEST ROPIEQUET HILGARD of Illinois. University of Illinois.
B. S. 1924.

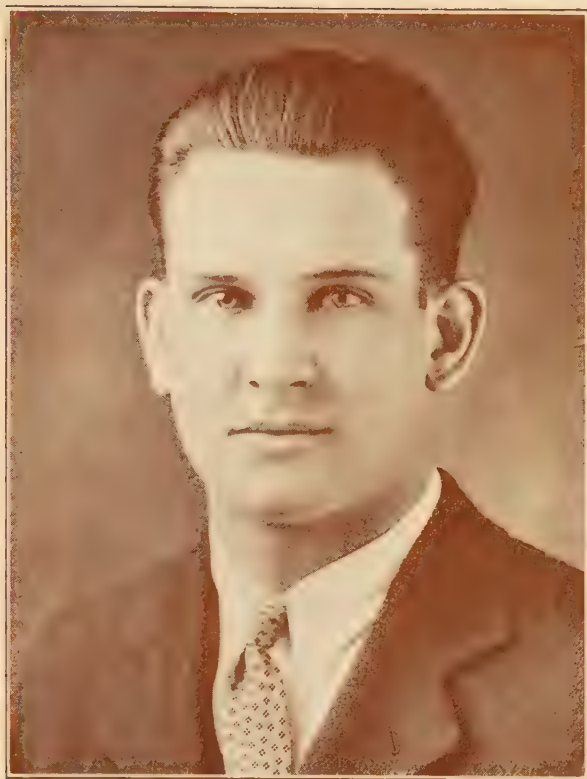

Activities: Managing Editor, University Annual. Vice-president, Student Council. President, Christian Association. Sigma Xi. Chi Beta.

Graduate Study: University of Illinois 1924-25. Yale University 1925-26.

Occupation: Secretary, Staff of Christian Association, University of Illinois 1924-25.

Field of Interest: Religious Education and Social Ethics.

"Hilgard is one of those delightful personalities with whom it is good fortune to work. He is a well-bred youth, gracious in manner, with just that balance of humor and seriousness which we all delight to find in our friends. He is in the habit of taking time to think. He graduated second in his class at the University of Illinois. He has an unusual intellect coupled with a fine devotional spirit."

M. J. TEAGUE HIPPS of North Carolina. Duke University, A. B. 1924.

Activities: Dramatics. Debating. Athletic manager. President, Christian Association. Chi Tau.

Graduate Study: Yale University, 1924-26.

Occupation: Director of Boys' work, 1923-24, Durham, N. C.

Field of Interest: Religious Education.

"Hipps is a man of attractive personality, of deeply religious feeling, likable and friendly, an active churchman, with a happy turn for mingling with people. As an undergraduate he was an influential member of the student body. Rich in human sympathy he gives promise of large usefulness as a personal counselor of students."

JOHN HOWARD HOWSON of Canada. University of Toronto.

Occupations: Director of Boys' Summer Camp. Field Secretary, National Council on Religion in Higher Education, 1925-26.

Field of Interest: Philosophy and Psychology of Religion.

"A 'man of parts' combining the heritage of Scotland and the outdoor training of the American West. An honor student at Harvard—original and thorough in his work. His caution invites confidence and his friendliness creates enduring attachments among younger and older men. As Field Secretary of the Council he has undertaken a difficult task with initiative, faith, and courage."

PATRICK MURPHY MALIN of Missouri. University of Pennsylvania. B. S., in Economics, 1924.

Activities: Valedictorian of his class. Intercollegiate debate. Editorial Board, College Daily. Pi Kappa Alpha. Delta Sigma Rho, and Beta Gamma Sigma. Honorary Scholarship Fraternity. President, Student Christian Association, 1924-25.

Graduate Study: Columbia-Union, 1925-26.

Occupations: Summer travel and study in Europe. Travel and speaking in American colleges as private secretary to Dr. Sherwood Eddy, 1924-25.

Field of Interest: Philosophy, Psychology, and History of Religion.

"Alert, energetic, and capable, Malin hits straight and hard. A man of decided convictions, he is at the same time open-minded and tolerant. His record in scholarship at Pennsylvania was unusually high. His travels with Sherwood Eddy in American colleges and in Europe have deepened his insight and widened his horizon."

GEORGE LAWRENCE MAXWELL of California. University of California, A. B. University Medalist, 1917.

Activities: Associate Editor of Student Publications. Alpha Kappa Lambda. Phi Delta Kappa. Phi Beta Kappa. President of University Christian Association.

Occupations: Secretary, Cleveland City Y. M. C. A., 1915-17; Signal Corps, U. S. Army, A. E. F., 1917-19; Cleveland City Y. M. C. A., 1919-1922; Student Y. M. C. A. Secretary at Western Reserve University and Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, 1922-24.

Field of Interest: History of Religion and Social Ethics.

"He has a kind of poise that is really rare, revealing a particularly able and well ordered mind. He is quiet, firm, and dependable. Analyzing his problems clearly, he quickly wins confidence and popularity—an ideal man for human engineering. He has already had thorough training and practical experience."

RICHMOND PEARSON MILLER of Pennsylvania. Swarthmore College, A. B. 1924.

Activities: Varsity Football. Varsity Lacrosse, Captain. College Debate. President, College Christian Association. Phi Beta Kappa. Phi Delta Theta. Senior Honor Society.

Graduate Study: Harvard University, 1924-26.

Occupation: Director of Summer Recreation Work.

Field of Interest: Social Ethics and Government.

"The outstanding, all round man of his class at Swarthmore, influential factor in student affairs, athlete, and Ivy medalist for leadership based upon character and scholarship. A wholesome personality of singular attractiveness, deeply religious with decided belief in the power of Christianity to effect the social reconstruction."

ELLEN WHITLEY MOORE of Michigan. University of Michigan
A. B. 1912.

Activities: Music. Dramatics. Mortar Board. Phi Beta Kappa. Student

Secretary, Methodist Student Work, 1916-19. Director of Methodist Student Work, University of Michigan, 1919-25.

Field of Interest: Biblical History and Literature.

"She is an able student, brilliant, appreciative, well-poised, and sensible withal. She is a woman of unusual refinement, of strong personality, and rich in human understanding. Her years of student leadership plainly demonstrate her personal hold upon undergraduates, who love to gather round her and discuss their problems.

HUGH ANDERSON MORAN of Kentucky. Stanford University
A. B. 1905.

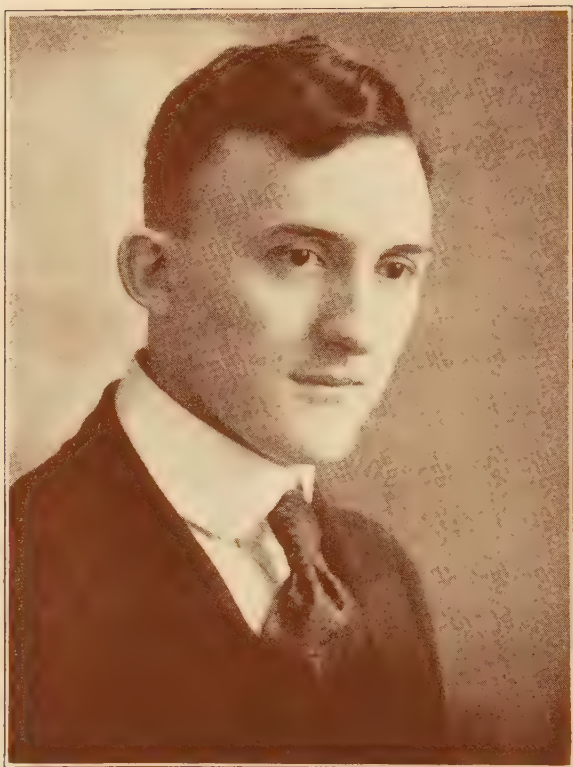

Activities: Varsity Track Team. President, Literary Society. Delta Upsilon Fraternity. President, College Christian Association.

Graduate Study: Rhodes Scholar, Oxford University, England, 1905-8. M. A., 1920. Summer Study at Marburg and Paris. Columbia-Union 1925-26.

Presbyterian University Pastor and Director, Religious Education, United Christian Work at Cornell University, 1919-25. Author, "Heroes", "A Creed for College Men", etc.

Field of Interest: Philosophy and Psychology of Religion, and Social Ethics.

"A linguist, traveller, and cosmopolitan, Moran is a many sided man, an engaging conversationalist, at home in any company. Without labored processes of analysis he reaches the heart of a problem with flashes of insight that illuminate its central meaning. Genuinely devout in spirit, yet so humanly interesting as to gather about him and guide into larger understandings of life many groups of undergraduates. His skill in questioning and provocative suggestion are revealed in his "A Creed for College Men."

JAMES MUILENBURG of Michigan. Hope College, A. B. 1920.

Activities: Editor College Weekly, and Annual. Christian Association Cabinet.

Graduate Study: University of Nebraska, 1922. Yale University, 1923-26.

Field of Interest: Biblical History and Literature.

"A quick incisive mind distinctly scholarly in type, cutting through to clear and definite results; constructive, however rather than critical. A man of strength, fine-spirited, co-operative, and friendly. In his work as a teacher he believes the spiritual motivation of his students to be a prime necessity."

WILLIAM STUART NELSON of Kentucky. Howard University
A. B. 1920.

Activities: Debating. Editorship. Christian Association.

Graduate Study: Union Theological Seminary, 1920-21. University of Paris, 1921-22. University of Berlin, 1922-23. University of Marburg, 1922-23. B. D., Yale Divinity School, 1924. University of Marburg, Semester, 1925.

Occupation: Instructor in Philosophy and Religious Education, Howard University, 1924-26.

Field of Interest: History and Philosophy of Religion.

"A man of sunny disposition, optimistic, and well-poised. He is cultured and mature, widely and thoroughly trained. His intellectual gifts are of a high order. He is deeply religious and dedicated to human service. His students have found in him a stimulating teacher, a wise counselor, and friend. He is perhaps the strongest man of his race intellectually and personally I have ever known."

FRED LOUIS PARRISH of Kansas. Northwestern University, A. B. 1917.

Activities: Water Sports. Public Speaking. Phi Delta Kappa. Philosophical Club. College Christian Association.

Graduate Study: B. D., Garrett Biblical Institute, 1920. M. A., Northwestern University, 1922.

Occupations: Overseas Y. M. C. A. Secretary, England, 1917-18. High School Principal, 1922-24.

Field of Interest: Philosophy, Psychology and History of Religion.

"An energetic, practical, midwestern type, accustomed to grapple with the issue at stake. He initiated in his Kansas High School an effective and popular course for senior students in Religion and Ethics with the confidence and support of all concerned. His interests are distinctly American: her history, her problems, and their solution. He is a man of high ideals, open-minded, tolerant and companionable."

FRANK KENNETH POOL of South Carolina. Wake Forest College, A. B. 1913.

Activities: Tennis and Basketball. College Christian Association.

Graduate Study: Th. M., Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, 1918. M. A., Wake Forest College, 1920. University of Chicago Summer Session, 1922. Yale University, 1924-26.

Occupations: Professor at Wake Forest College, 1918-20, Furman University, 1920-24. Instructor in Great Living Religions, Yale University, 1924-25.

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature and History of Religion.

"A delightful Southern gentleman, buoyant and cultured. A man of vision and faith. His intellectual abilities, his skill as a teacher, his sympathetic personal regard for each student, quicken a high response. In one year he has gained an influence with our students that some teachers do not gain in a life time. He has made Bible one of the most popular courses in the curriculum. He embodies in his person and spirit the religion which he teaches."

ELIOT PORTER of Kansas. University of Kansas, A. B. 1911.

Activities: Editor, Literary Magazine. University Debate. Phi Beta Kappa. Alpha Tau Omega. Member Pan-Hellenic Council.

Graduate Study: M. A., Princeton University, 1914. Princeton Theological Seminary 1912-15. University of Kansas, 1923-24. University of Chicago, 1924-26.

Occupations: Canadian Home Missionary, Summers of 1913, 1914. Pastor, Presbyterian Church, Harlowton, Montana, 1915-16, 1919-22. Ambulance Driver, French Army, 1916. Captain, Trench Mortars, English Army, 1917-19. Gazetted Military Cross King's Birthday Honors List, 1919. Presbyterian University Pastor, University of Kansas, 1922-24.

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature and Religious Education.

"Eliot Porter is distinctly individual though by no possible account an individualist, for he is socially minded and dedicated to human welfare. But he is somehow different. There is a witty, quizzical man on the surface—a coiner of telling phrases who packs a meaty truth into a passing quip. But under the surface there is a pioneering soul who welcomes the new adventure, whether to a hard Home Mission station, to trench mortar service in France, or to the loneliness of the pacifist, because he has shared and suffered and understood. He is a wrestler for truth, conscience-free, spirited, and self-reliant. Because he finds the heart of truth in an ancient book he will teach the Bible to American students."

MRS. CLARA ETHEL POWELL of Canada. University of Chicago, Ph. B. 1918.

Activities: Student Christian Association. Educational Classes and Social Service Work.

Graduate Study: A. M., University of Chicago, 1924. University of Chicago, 1924-26.

Occupations: Director of Religious Education Church School, Boston, Mass., 1918-1921. Director of Religious Activities, Public Schools of Flint, Michigan, 1921-24.

Field of Interest: Religious Education.

"A woman of rare ability, indomitable energy, and delightful personal quality, Mrs. Powell has won honors for excellence both in general scholarship and in her chosen field. She directed the religious instruction of a public school system with initiative and distinction. Young people find in her an understanding friend and wise counselor. She quickens enthusiasm, effort, and affection."

WEBSTER CLAY POWELL of New York. Williams College, A. B. 1919.

Activities: Dramatics. Literary Work. Class Athletics. Kappa Alpha.

Graduate Study: Harvard, 1919-20. Columbia, 1922-23. Harvard, 1924-26.

Occupations: Business and the practice of law. A. E. F., 1917-18.

Field of Interest: Social Ethics.

"There is here a quiet resourcefulness, an even-tempered stability, and a readiness to follow his convictions wherever they take him. Although successful in business and law, he responded to the call of service to undergraduates because he believes them to be of strategic importance in shaping the national life. Practical, good natured, and companionable, he will make religion meaningful to men who will bear responsibilities in the years ahead."

CARL EVERETT PURINTON of Maine. Bates College, A. B. 1923.

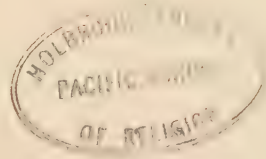

Activities: Student Christian Association. Editor, College paper. Varsity Tennis Team. Phi Beta Kappa.

Graduate Study: Yale Divinity School, 1923-24. American School of Oriental Research, Jerusalem, 1924-25. Leipzig University, Summer Semester, 1925. Yale Graduate School, 1925-26.

Occupation: Assistant in Department of Biblical Literature, Bates College, 1923. Co-author, "The Literature of the New Testament".

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature and History.

"A man of stimulating personal quality, fresh and vital, with much of human sympathy. One feels at once the sprightly energy, the clean-cut orderly method, the ability to think. He graduated from Bates with high honors and quickly won recognition at Yale. He has widened his horizon by travel and deepened his hold upon historic values by a year in Jerusalem.

MARY HOWELL ROSS of Kansas. Baker University, A. B. 1912.

Activities: Delta Delta Delta. Young Women's Christian Association. Music. Liberal Club.

Graduate Study: Hanover, Germany, 1912-13. University of Minnesota, Summer Session, 1916. National Training School Y. W. C. A., 1918-19. Columbia University and Union Seminary 1925-26.

Occupations: High School teacher, 1913-18. Secretary, Y. W. C. A., Northwestern University, 1919-22, and University of Michigan 1922-25.

Field of Interest: Religious Education.

"Mary Ross is a woman of unusual poise. She is energetic, capable, gracious, and cultured. Her interests are both broad and deep. With a genuine friendliness and fine intelligence, she has, through some years of experience as teacher and Association secretary, proven her ability to develop initiative and a high response in her students and fellow workers."

WILLIAM HARLOW SEAMAN of Pennsylvania. Oberlin College,
A. B. 1924.

Activities: Editor of College Annual. Student Christian Association. Musical Clubs. Men's Senate and Class Offices.

Graduate Study: Columbia-Union Theological Seminary 1924-26.

Field of Interest: History and Philosophy of Religion.

"Seaman was an all-round activity leader in student affairs at Oberlin. His popularity was based not alone upon his likability, but also upon hard work, skill in co-operation, and native powers of leadership. Students and faculty alike held him in high regard. Concentrating more narrowly on his studies at Union, he has demonstrated his ability in this field also."

ELLIOTT SPEER of New Jersey. Princeton University, A. B. 1921.

Activities: Editor, Daily Princetonian. Cap and Gown Club. Student Christian Association. Chi Phi at Lafayette.

Graduate Study: New College, Edinburgh University School of Divinity, 1921-22. Teachers College, Columbia, 1925-26.

Occupations: National War Work Council Y. M. C. A., 1917-18. Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Princeton, 1920-21. Pastor, New York City, 1922-24. Chaplain and Professor of Bible, Lafayette College, 1924-26.

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature and Philosophy of Religion.

"A man of native strength and personal power. He is a hard worker, resourceful, and intellectually able. His spiritual life is marked by sanity, depth, and optimism. Following a varied service in University, army, and city life, he is grappling with a typical undergraduate situation at Lafayette, where he has won and holds the affection, confidence, and respect of students and faculty."

JOHN ROY STEELMAN of Arkansas. Henderson Brown College, A. B. 1922.

Activities: Editor, College Paper. President, Christian Association. Debating. Gamma Sigma. Cercle Francais.

Graduate Study: M. A., Vanderbilt University, 1924. B. D., Vanderbilt University, 1925. Harvard University, 1925-26.

Occupations: Secretary, Vanderbilt Theological School and Assistant in Department of Social Sciences, Vanderbilt, 1923-25.

Field of Interest: Religious Education and Social Ethics.

"With business ability and experience, Steelman couples sustained enthusiasm for educational and religious work. An attractive and friendly man, able, quiet, and forceful, he wins his way with all groups whom he touches. He conveys to them the heartiness of his own optimism, and belief in the living power of religion to leaven society."

ARTHUR LESSNER SWIFT, JR., of New York. Williams College, A. B. 1913.

Activities: Manager, Musical Clubs. Dramatics. Captain, Fencing Team. Debating Team. Delta Sigma Rho. Phi Beta Kappa.

Graduate Study: Auburn Theological Seminary, 1913-14. B. D., Union Theological Seminary, 1916. M. A., Columbia University, 1925.

Occupations: Associate Pastor, Center Congregational Church, New Haven, 1916-18. Professor and Director of Field Work at Union Theological Seminary, 1918-26. Director of Survey Y. M. C. A., of New York City, 1925-26.

Field of Interest: Social Sciences.

"A man of culture, maturity, and wide experience. His unusual gifts are attested by his early appointment to the faculty of Union Seminary and by his directorship of the Survey of the New York Metropolitan Y. M. C. A., in all its branches. Capable of carrying many responsibilities with poise and efficiency, he is at the same time a keen scholar and stimulating teacher who wins and holds the confidence of colleagues and students alike."

GEORGE FINGER THOMAS of Texas. Southern Methodist University, A. B. 1919.

Activities: Intercollegiate Debate. Tennis. Student Christian Association. Pi Kappa Alpha.

Graduate Study: Rhodes Scholar, Oxford University, England, 1920-23. Yale University, 1925-26.

Occupations: High School Teacher, 1919-20. Instructor, Southern Methodist University, 1923-24; School of Theology, and College of Liberal Arts, 1924-25.

Field of Interest: Philosophy, Psychology and History of Religion.

"A strong man of even disposition, tactful, and truly spiritual. He is a man of vision and force, a Rhodes scholar, a hard worker, resourceful, and highly intelligent. One finds in him the kind of solid dependability which the student world needs to know at first hand. Respected by old and young alike he inspires loyalty and quickens affection."

ALEXANDER BUEL TROWBRIDGE, JR., of New York, Cornell University, A. B. 1920.

Activities: President, Cornell Christian Association, 1920. Kappa Alpha Varsity Football and Track Squads at Cornell. President, Oxford University Christian Association, 1923. Vincent's Club and President Junior Common Room, University College, Oxford.

Graduate Study: Rhodes Scholar, Oxford University, 1921-23. Diploma in Theology, European Travel. American Seminar in Europe, Summer 1923.

Occupation: Secretary, Cornell Christian Association, 1923-26.

Field of Interest: Social Ethics and Religious Education.

"Religion is central in Trowbridge's purpose and philosophy of life. Unusually popular at Cornell and Oxford, widely traveled, alive to international and racial problems, he believes that the Christian way of life leads men and nations out of confusion and futility into usefulness and peace. A chivalrous man, of artistic sensibilities, he brings to his personal contacts with the students of many races a radiant friendliness and effective service."

H. KENASTON TWITCHELL, JR., of New York. Princeton, A. B. 1924.

Activities: Manager Varsity Football. President, Tiger Inn. Senior Council. Class Secretary. Philadelphian Society Cabinet.

Graduate Study: Princeton University, 1925-26.

Occupation: Graduate Secretary, Princeton Christian Association, 1924-26.

Field of Interest: Theology. History and Philosophy of Religion.

"A courageous leader of student sentiment, an efficient manager of football, popular and able, Twitchell discovered his dominant motive in the power of Christ to transform human life. With single-minded consecration and spiritual insight he already wields a wide influence with Princeton men. He has a nature of singular clarity, spontaneity, and winning power. His future is potential."

WILLARD EDWIN UPHAUS of Indiana. Indiana University, A. B. 1917.

Activities: Literary Society. Student Christian Association. Psychology Club. Phi Delta Kappa.

Graduate Study: University of Wisconsin, summers 1920 and 1921. Yale University, Fogg Scholarship. 1921-25. M. A., 1922. Ph. D., 1925.

Occupations: High School Teacher and Superintendent. Assistant in School of Education, Indiana University. Professor of Religious Education, Southern Y. M. C. A., College, 1925-26.

Field of Interest: Religious Education.

"A pleasant, likable man, mature, devoted and dependable, Uphaus is an indefatigable worker, a thorough scholar, and a teacher of proven capacity. Upon the completion of his graduate studies he was called to a post of strategic importance in the Religious Education of the South."

EDWIN EDGAR VOIGT of Illinois. Northwestern University, B. S. 1917.

Occupations: U. S. Army 1917-1918. Instructor in Biblical Literature, Northwestern University, 1920-21. Assistant Professor of Old Testament Interpretation, Garrett Biblical Institute, 1924-26.

Field of Interest: Biblical Literature.

"A widely trained, persistent, and accurate student, Voigt was recalled to Garrett to a responsible teaching position in Old Testament Interpretation in which field he is a recognized scholar. Mentally alert, broad in his interests, and stimulating as a teacher, he awakens a lively response and personal attachment among his students."

JULIAN L. WOODWARD of Illinois. Cornell University 1922.

Activities: Christian Association Cabinet, Class Day Committee, Secretary Independent Association. Phi Kappa Phi.

Graduate Study: Columbia University 1922-25. M. A. 1924. Continues at Columbia second semester 1925-26.

Occupations: Instructor in Sociology, Dartmouth College first semester 1925-26.

Field of Interest: Sociology and College Administration.

"Woodward quietly but quickly makes his presence felt in any group. His is a stimulating mind, challenging in method and insatiable in its desire for facts. Central in his philosophy is the belief that truth always validates itself and needs no bolstering from tradition, authority or convention. Unassuming and unselfish in life he is devoted to the quest of spiritual reality and social reconstruction.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON RELIGION IN HIGHER EDUCATION is making a new approach to the problem of the moral and religious life of American students. It has for the prosecution of its work no endowment or established financial constituency. A portion of its Fellowships have been provided through a grant from the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation. The major portion of its funds must come, however, from interested individuals. Those who believe in this distinctive approach to character education are invited to share in the financial support of the Council's work. The budget for the fiscal year, October 1, 1925-September 30, 1926, is as follows:

Fellowships.....	$35,000.00
Salaries.....	6,900.00
Travel.....	2,000.00
